

Counterpoint of his fairy-tale first album « Spanish Breakfast » on InFiné, Erwan Castex aka Rone finds his way with this second EP to the Dancefloors like a maestro for four new electronic pieces, transcended by a quartet of musicians as heteroclitic as audacious.

The shadow of "the white Lady" glides majestically alongside the eponymous track of La Dame Blanche and heralds a new and exciting artistic direction for the young producer from Paris. She invites the free-jazz Saxo player Adrien Roch to a Baroque-Techno-Jazz anthem, in which the copper of a Vibrato blazes itself with the crescendo of an unstoppable kick. Bomb!

On the B-side, a subversive baritone, Alain Damasio (famous French SF writer), engages a surrealistic dialogue about the sense of creation, backed by the progressive and spellbinding House of Buzzin Fly new Hero, Rocco (Rodamaal). This Sacred Union raises the tone of the Bora Vision mix to an almost mystic statement of intent.

Available only in its digital version, InFiné's Austrian Princess, Clara Moto pairs up for a collab with NYC Dance-punk idol and bass player for !!! or LCD Soundsystem, Tyler Pope. Their version of Belleville, classy and efficient, combines elements of bleep and disco, bridging Europe with America for the listener's best pleasure.

Last digital bonus track, InFiné could not deprive you of the Rocco's dub instrumental version of Bora. A safe bet for psychedelic Dance explosion!

Music Bless You!

RELATED LINKS: Rone - www.myspace.com/rone0 ,

Rocco - www.myspace.com/roccorodamaal , Clara Moto - www.myspace.com/claramoto ,

Tyler Pope - www.myspace.com/mightypope

TRACKLISTING: A : RONE_La Dame Blanche (Extended Version) / B : RONE_Bora (Rocco Vision mix) - exclusive digital: RONE_Belleville (Clara Moto & Tyler Pope remix), Rone_Bora (Rocco Dub Version)